PERMITTED COPYING

Fair Dealing Reproductions

Fair dealing for the purpose of "research" or "private study" does not infringe copyright.² Patrons may use the Library's photocopiers to make reproductions pursuant to the fair dealing provisions of the Copyright Act if all of the following conditions are met.

1. A single copy only of any work is to be reproduced for the purpose of "research" or private study.³ For greater clarity, a "research" purpose includes arguing cases in court as well as preparing opinions, briefs and factums.⁴
2. The portion of each work to be reproduced must be reasonably necessary in order to accomplish the fair dealing purpose for which the single copy is to be made.⁵
3. The person who creates the reproduction must either:
 - a. Be the person who is to engage in the ultimate research or private study for which the single copy is to be made; or
 - b. Be acting pursuant to a request from another person to reproduce the work, and that other person must be the person who is to engage in the ultimate research or private study for which single copy is to be made
4. Any copy that is generated must not be incorporated in to another book, article or other work to be sold competition with the original works that are copied.
5. Further copies of any reproduction must not be made and distributed to others, save for additional copies which may be required for submission to Court or tribunal

Work Not Protected by Copyright

Any work that is not protected by copyright may be reproduced on the Nova Scotia Barristers' Society Library's photocopiers without infringing copyright. Patrons who wish to engage in such copying may seek assistance from Nova Scotia Barristers' Society Library staff to confirm that the work in which they are interested is not protected by copyright.

Reproducing Less than a Substantial Part of a Work Protected by Copyright

Reproducing less than a "substantial" part of any work protected by copyright does not infringe copyright.⁶

The Nova Scotia Barristers' Society Library staff will fill requests to reproduce less than a "substantial" part of any work.

Reproductions Authorized by the Owner of Copyright

Patrons may use the Nova Scotia Barristers' Society Library's photocopiers to reproduce any portion of a work if such reproduction is carried out with the consent, permission or authorization in respect of such reproduction.

ENDNOTES

1. NSBS Library staff may deny patrons access to photocopiers for reproduction purposes that are inconsistent with the terms of the Notice, or allow them access on such terms as they consider appropriate in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright Act.
